Patricia Chute

About the Artist

Patricia has always been an artist, and her love of art has been a lifelong focus. It began during her school years where she developed a very strong interest in art, and thanks to parents who believed in nurturing special talent, she was encouraged to pursue her passion through childhood.

Though her deepest interest remained in fine art, she chose to make commercial art her career and spent 22 rewarding and successful years as an art/creative director. She retired from the frenetic world of advertising in 1999, and now devotes her talents once again to fine art.

She loves traveling to new and exotic places whenever possible, where she discovers unlimited inspiration. By working in a variety of media, including acrylic, watercolor, mixed media, and ceramic decoration, she has the freedom to explore hidden impressions by blending closely observed reality with color, texture, patterns and light.

Her resume includes individual shows and participation in many group and juried exhibitions, where she has won numerous awards as well as signature membership in the Florida Watercolor Society.

Many of her paintings are licensed, reproduced and sold in retail locations and catalogs all over the US and Canada. Her original work can be seen at galleries in her hometown, St. Petersburg, Florida, as well as private collections in the US and abroad.
