“I’m going to be an artist when I grow up.”

This is what Maggie Ruth has always said...and is still saying.

She has gone a long way since winning her first award for art at the age of 5. For the past several years she has had representation in several galleries. Thanks to this exposure, her paintings are in private collections in places such as NYC, Boston, Miami, Chicago and LA. She is particularly proud that one of her pieces is in the private collection of Joan Rivers.

Artist Maggie Ruth is a storyteller and believes her paintings reflect this. Her Pink Ribbon Series represent her greatest triumph: she is a 2 time cancer survivor. Life is good and she is busy doing what she loves to do. Her wish for you is that you enjoy looking at her pieces as much as she enjoyed making them.
