Adam Thomas

Growing up in rural Michigan, Adam Thomas developed an appreciation for the natural world. The house that his father built was surrounded by forests and swamps - full of all kinds of plants and animals to study in the three months of summer vacation. He would spend hours watching great blue herons feeding in the swamps or collecting pond samples and researching the micro-organisms under his microscope.

Adam's journey to oil painting had an interesting beginning. Since college, he focused his artistic eye on rendering photo realistic portraits of animals with pastels. In 2004, you might have seen him and his pet drawings on TV shows like "Good Morning Arizona", "Sonoran Living" and "Your Life A to Z". After being inspired to learn how to paint in 2005, he started to sell his paintings in galleries only after painting two months. In one years time, he was in three galleries and had a one man show at gallery/restaurant, Zest Spirited Dining where over 200 people were at the opening reception.

Artists Statement

Since Adam started painting in 2005, his technique and styles may have changed but his objectives have stayed the same. He is fascinated by sunlight and how it changes everything we see at different times of the day. His objective is to capture these colors and expressively show the essence of how sunlight breaks through dense forests or bouncing off petals of flowers. His work celebrates the natural world we live in.
