Lillian Yao

About the Artist

" Lillian Yao is an innovative artist whose images have color highlights in an otherwise black and white photograph. With today's technology, she uses the original color and combines it with black and white. In this way, she invites you to Stop & Pause™ and reflect on the beauty that surrounds us, which so often escapes us in our daily routines.

Lillian is largely a self-taught artist. From the time she could hold a crayon, she has always loved to draw and paint. Her love of photography was born after documenting her first trip to Europe at the age of 17. Since then, she has always had a camera within her reach. Not long after taking a detour from her love of making art and becoming a pharmacist, she rediscovered her love for painting and photography and decided to aggressively pursue her dream of having a career as an artist.

By using her color intuition and her eye for seeing life through the frame of her camera, Lillian successfully combines her love of painting and photography resulting in her unique images.

She currently works out of her studio in Southern California."
